YOUTH

Youth must be served. And while America's standout riders, ropers and steer wrestlers will flock to San Francisco's Cow Palace in great numbers, come October 25, the Grand National Rodeo is seeking pint-sized cowboys and cowgirls ahead of the West's premier rodeo.

Sombrero-wearing boys and girls from 3 to 10 years old are being signed up for a title the best of the riders cannot possibly win--the Littlest Cowboy. They will be judged at 9 A.M., Saturday October 19 at the Esquire Theater, Market street at 5th, in San Francisco. Its open to Northern California Youngsters.

The juvenile cowhands will stride to glory on their own two feet. They are not to bring their ponies or hobby horses to the theater--but their Western attire will be a big factor in the judging.

There will be lots of winners. Besides choosing the littlest cowboy-- or cowgirl--the contest also will select the best-dressed cowboy and cowgirl; most freckled cowboy or cowgirl; fattest cowboy or cowgirl; the tallest cowboy or cowgirl.

The juvenile Westerners and their parents will be guests at one matinee arena performance at the GRAND NATIONAL RODEO, LIVE-STOCK EXPOSITION and HORSE SHOW during its October 25-November 3 presentations at the famous Cow Palace.

Entries must be mailed by October 14 to: Contest Manager, care Cow Palace, San Francisco 24.

Featuring Sugar Pine, its growth, value as a lumber tree, and its many uses, the Plumas County display at the recent California State Fair earned second place in its category and a cash award of $1400.

According to Link Peckinpah, Plumas Chamber Manager, who was responsible for the County exhibit project, the display was attractively presented in an artistic manner and emphasized interesting information about Sugar Pine. The exhibit back ground mural, painted by Exhibit Contractor Keith Skidmore of Bakersfield, was outstanding as were many other features of the exhibit which displayed fine lumber specimens provided by Meadow Valley Lumber Company; four giant Sugar Pine cuts cooperatively provided by Howell and Redkey Logging Company and the Plumas National Forest; and a colorful display of large Sugar Pine cones. Largest of the Sugar Pine cuts come from an 8 foot diameter tree estimated by actual ring count to be more than 450 years old. This tree had started its growth along the time Columbus discovered America.

Periods of historical interest were pointed out on this giant cut which, for instance, showed the tree to have reached a diameter of 72 inches in 1732, the birth year of George Washington.

One of the exhibit features was a beautiful 48 inch by 72 inch enlargement in sepia tone of the two picturesque Sugar Pine Trees located with in sight of Highway 89 just at the edge of the Canyon dam community.

Other interesting features were a display of old and new Sugar Pine shakes contributed by Orville Brown of Quincy; some outstanding whittled objects loaned by Luther Love, Taylorsville; Norman White Jr, Quincy; and A. L. Dougherty, Greenville; and a dish of Sugar Pine "sugar"; also a small display of Sugar Pine nuts. Exhibited also were samples of Blister Rust as it affects Sugar Pine and its other host plant, the Gooseberry.

Those who visited the Plumas County exhibit were given an opportunity to acquaint themselves with the complete story of Sugar Pine.

FORWARD PLUMAS COUNTY

Donald C. Hawkins has been appointed Manager of the new Safeway Store in Quincy it was announced today by K. W. Huntington, Sacramento Division Manager.

Mr. Hawkins comes to Quincy from Mt. Shasta where he became Store Manager in January 1963. Prior to that assignment Mr. Hawkins was Manager of the Safeway Store in Red Bluff and prior to that assignment he has served as Assistant Manager in Redding Tahoe Valley and Paradise.

Mr. Hawkins is a graduate of Chico State College and he began his career with Safeway in 1957 in Chico as a part-time Food Clerk while completing his education.

Mr. Hawkins' wife, Frances, and their three children, Dawn, Brian and Dana will be locating in Quincy at an early date.

This maiden issue of KQCY TIMES is just another indication of Plumas County progress. Located in the County Seat, KQCY's communication facilities are dedicated to service for all of Plumas County. The establishment of the newspaper to provide a weekly roundup of County and community news will facilitate the daily news reports broadcast hourly by Radio Station KQCY.

The editorial policy of KQCY TIMES will provide for a clearing house of ideas of local county concern. Our editorials will deal only with subjects of local interest and will leave State and National affairs to our metropolitan constituents. Politically we shall "ride the fence" unless matters of public concern are of a nature to demand that this paper take a definite stand.

This newspaper has been established because its owner believes in progress and has an indomitable faith in Plumas County. It will serve progress enthusiastically, and it will serve Quincy and Plumas County faithfully.

How to put your name on a Freedom Document

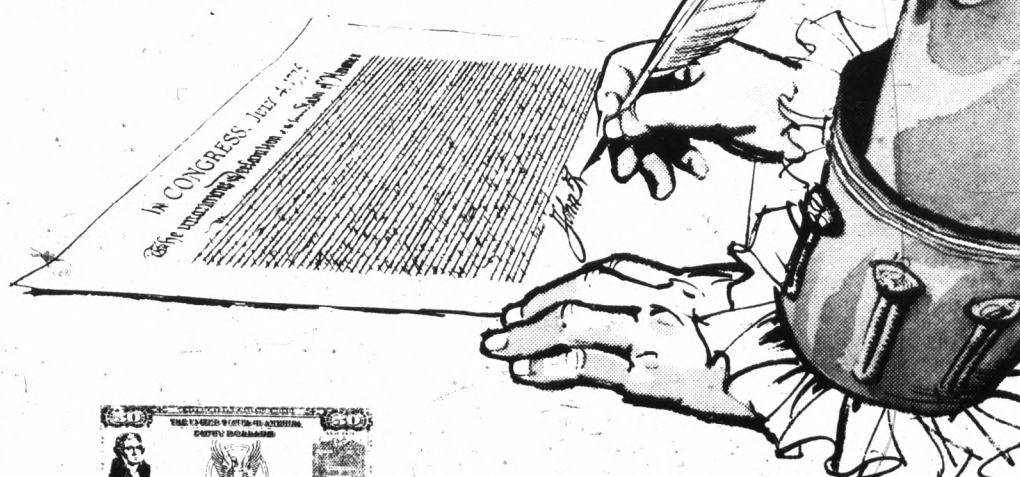

Most of us have deep beliefs in the things America stands for . . . the freedoms that 56 men signed into existence 187 years ago at Independence Hall.

Those old-timers didn't have an exclusive on endorsing freedom, however. You can still put your name on a freedom document by buying U.S. Savings Bonds.

The money you put into Savings Bonds helps build Uncle Sam's financial strength, an important asset in furthering the causes of freedom wherever men want to be free on this globe of ours.

This money also helps build your own financial strength. And frankly, the more living comfort you have, the higher your living standard, the better you demonstrate one of the advantages of being a free people.

Tens of millions of American families use U.S. Savings Bonds as a way to save for the future and help their country now. How about adding your family to the roster?

Keep freedom in your future with

OLDS JETSTAR

LANISING: Oldsmobile's new Jetstar 88, along with the new F-85's, Dynamic and Super 88's, 98's and Starfires will be on display at dealers showrooms across the nation on Friday, October 4, it was announced today by Mr. J. F. Wolfram, Oldsmobile's general manager and a vice president of General Motors.

"The new Jetstar 88, lower priced companion to Oldsmobile's other famous, high performing 88's," Wolfram said, "is powered by the new Jetfire Rocket engine, an ultra-high compression, 330 cubic inch member of the Rocket engine family.

"In addition," he said, "our dealers will also be showing Oldsmobile's new Medium price class sports car, the Jetstar 8, powered by the big, powerful Starfire engine.

"All 1964 Oldsmobiles," Wolfram continued, "are designed to meet the most discriminating tastes of the buyer, with brilliant styling and exciting performance to appeal to the young of all ages."

Wolfram said the Jetstar 88 will be produced in a 4-door sedan, hardtop sedan, coupe and convertible, on a full-size Oldsmobile body and a special 123-inch wheelbase chassis. The car is designed for the increasing number of "up and coming" younger families. It is a lighter car, fleet in appearance, and fleet in action with its new lightweight cast-iron Jetfire Rocket V-8 engine.

"The Jetfire Rocket is a completely new engine," he continued, "capping a long list of engineering firsts by Oldsmobile. It embodies an inverted 'A' cylinder block construction and integrated manifold and engine cover for a new standard of operation. It is outstandingly smooth, due to the rigidity of the crankcase and crankshaft. A new combustion chamber promotes instantaneous ignition. The cylinder block casting is manufactured by a foundry process called 'hot-box' coring, the first time Oldsmobile's adaption of this process has been applied to a production automotive engine. The new engine develops 245 horsepower with a 10.25 to 1 compression ratio.

CALIF HISTORY MONTH

Governor Edmund G. Brown has announced the appointment of a statewide commission of 57 prominent Californians who will organize and promote an annual "California History Month" observance.

The observance this year is being held this month, September. Attorney Thomas J. Hammer, Jr., of Sacramento was named chairman of the history commission by the governor.

"Millions of persons have come to California in recent years and we should do all we can to give them an understanding of our history and culture," the governor said.

"California History Month will help our citizens reach that understanding. A study of our history will foster new insight and at the same time be an enjoyable experience."

The governor said that emphasis in this year's observance is on the presence of historical landmarks which are identified by roadside plaques in hundreds of places along California's highways.

He said that local libraries and schools were being urged to participate in the observance by making books and materials available to students and the general public.

Hammer said that an effort will be made to develop history observance programs in every community in the state.

"Our statewide committee represents 25 counties in every area of the state," he said. "In future years we hope to broaden its activities with representation from all of the counties."

"Through observance of History Month we hope to create a broader awareness of the need to preserve California's rich heritage and culture," Hammer said.

"California's tremendous growth already has destroyed many of our links with our colorful past. We would hope to alert this generation to the need for keeping alive those links with the past."

LUMBER INDUSTRY ASKS PRESIDENT

ECONOMIC ASPECTS OF CONSERVATION

Washington, D. C., September 25 . . . . . The American lumber industry has urged President Kennedy to indicate his intention to include economic aspects of natural resources in his forthcoming conservation tour of Western States.

N. B. Giustina, President of the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, in a wire sent to The White House, urged prompt acceptance of the industry suggestion so that forestry industry organizations beginning annual meetings in various Western areas could plan 1964 programs accordingly.

He told the President, "They will be attentive to your informed comments upon the economic aspects of natural management. Personal assurances that the Administration considers industry a responsible partner in true conservation and will act to enable industry to continue this effort, will favorably influence group judgements."

Press reports concerning the President's conservation tour had indicated that he would limit his fact finding to outdoor recreation and water resource matters.

Giustina told the President, "Recreational opportunities for the people, essential as they are, cannot take precedence over more fundamental concerns, such as food, clothing and shelter for Americans today and tomorrow who depend upon the forests for livelihood."

CONTAIN THE LITTERBUGS!

We dislike having to bring it up but this country seems to be losing an important battle—the fight to control the litterbug.

Despite the fact that $50 million has to be spent annually just to remove litter from our highways; that trash piles caused many deaths and hundreds of millions of damages in fires and that litter creates a breeding ground for disease, the litterbugs are still very much with us and show no signs of mending their careless ways.

Remember that the occasional litterbug is quite as bad as the confirmed one. You may think that it's of no consequence to toss a candy wrapper from a speeding car, but just ponder a moment on the size of the pile that would result if each of the cars in the immediate vicinity contributed but one item of trash to it.

This is one case where the molehill would actually become a mountain in short order.

We can, and should, make America a glittering nation by stopping-littering.

New Safety Glass For Sliding Doors

A new development in high strength tempered glass for use in residential sliding glass doors, bathtub enclosures, school glazing, etc., is "Herculite K," recently announced by Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company.

The new glass is several times stronger than ordinary glass of the same thickness but should it break under an especially heavy impact, it "falls safe" by crumbling into small granular particles with no dangerous large, sharp pieces.

INSIDE INDUSTRY

The advent of the practical sewing machine might have been indefinitely delayed if Isaac Meritt Singer had been successful as a Shakespearean actor . . . Born in Pitts- ton, N.Y., in 1811, Singer ran away from home at the age of 12 and went to work as an apprentice machinist in Rochester . . . He soon became a qualified journeyman but fell in love with the stage and for 20 years he persisted in his attempts to reach theatrical stardom although he hardly, if ever, managed to advance above the role of bit-player . . . Finally, in the early 1840's when his touring company was stranded in Fredericksburg, Ohio, he was forced to seek work in a local woodworking plant . . . He invented a carving machine and scraped up enough money to go east and into business . . . In New York he teamed up with a printer named George Zieber and they moved to Boston where they rented space to display the carving machine in the workroom of Orson C. Phelps, a struggling sewing machine manufacturer . . . Although the first sewing machine patent had gone to Elias Howe, Jr., the latter had failed to launch his product successfully in America and a number of machines of a similar type were produced by others . . . One of these was the Phelps machine which had been built by John A. Lerow and S. C. Blodgett . . . The machine had many faults, however, and a high break-down rate . . . Singer was certain he could correct all the "bugs" and eventually he did just that . . . He replaced the circular shuttle that twisted the thread by a horizontal one; designed a table to support the cloth, a presser-foot to hold the cloth down at the upward stroke of the needle and replaced the cumbersome hand crank with a foot pedal . . . The altered machine proved an almost immediate success and within a few years the company was doing the proverbial landoffice business, going on to develop into one of the greatest enterprises in industrial history.

Largest Molten Iron Gobbler!

CHICAGO — The world's largest hot blast cupola is shown here being moved and set in position at Acme Steel Company's oxygen steelplant here. A cupola is a giant melting pot where scrap and other ingredients are melted into molten iron. The cupola has several sections; will stand seven stories high when completed, and will process 50 tons of molten iron an hour. The main section alone weighs 65 tons. Built by Dravo Corporation of Pittsburgh, the big equipment is part of a $4 million facilities improvements program recently announced by Acme.

Electronic Detective

Increases Highway Safety, Speeds Service

No greasy coveralls on these "mechanics"... they're technicians in Pacific Intermountain Express laboratories, testing oil from P-I-E trucks to pinpoint engine wear invisible to the human eye.

EMERYVILLE, CALIF. — A modern, space age "detective" behind the scenes at the Pacific Intermountain Express terminal here, is causing a revolution in the truck maintenance field.

An electronic instrument, known as the Spectrometer, is geared to stop trouble before it starts by tracking down hidden and elusive aches and pains which cause engine breakdown. With little more than a thimbleful of oil, P-I-E's research laboratory can now accurately diagnose wearing parts in the engines of its line-haul trucks in advance, thus reducing road failures and ensuring faster, safer customer service.

SHORT AND SWEET

Longest stalacites in the world are in the wall-supported column extending 195 feet from roof to floor in the Nerja Cave near Malaga, Spain. Said to be the first man to cross the United States in a car, Col. H. Nelson Jackson drove a two-cylinder Winston from San Francisco to New York in 1903. The trip took 63 days.

According to the Catholic Digest signs posted on the fence around a girls' school in New Jersey warn: "Trespassers will be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. The Sisters of Mercy." Some think a picnic is too far to go to eat too much. The symbol of the International Red Cross, which is 100 years old this year, is the flag of Switzerland with colors reversed.

"Behind every successful man stands a woman who couldn't be more surprised." —Russell Buck, Wellington (O.) Enterprise.

Amelia Earhart lighthouse on Howland Island in the mid-Pacific that was destroyed by Japanese naval gunfire in World War II, has been rebuilt by the United States Coast Guard. Erected in memory of the famed flyer who lost her life off the United States-owned island the light stands just north of the equator and 250 miles east of the International Date Line. Miss Earhart and her navigator, Fred J. Noonan, disappeared on July 2, 1937 en route to Howland from Lae, New Guinea.

The petroleum industry spends more than $6.6 billion a year looking for, developing and producing oil and gas in the United States. Exploration costs alone exceed $2 billion and of this $750 million annually is lost in dry holes.

"Play-As-You-Go" Radio-Phonograph

This outdoor miss jumps aboard ship—and never misses a beat of her favorite tune. She's carrying her new "Swing-Along," a battery-powered radio-phonograph that plays in any position, even upside-down. Ideal anywhere, in any season—on picnics, at the beach, hunting, or just hiking along—the new instrument has just been introduced by Channel Master Corporation, Ellenville, New York.

Ruggedly constructed, the transistorized radio-phonograph weighs only six pounds, and can be carried like a briefcase without interrupting the play of the record. Both record-player and radio operate on four "D" Cell flashlight batteries. Channel Master's advanced design provides excellent sound quality, and gives the radio pin-point station selectivity.

Secret of the precision phonograph, which plays 45-rpm records, is an invisible tone arm that plays from underneath the record, even while the unit is in motion. Play is continuous since the arm is designed to stay with the record in any position.

List-priced at $79.95, the "Swing-Along" carries the famous Channel Master 90-day free repair warranty.

Red meat supplies during the first half of the year were up considerably and the trend is expected to continue for the balance of the year. Lower prices are the natural result. Cold storage supplies of fish are also higher and there have already been sharp reductions in canned fish prices.

Here's a discovery you'll welcome. Curtiss Candy Co. has a new exclusive "Triple X" package of paper, polyethylene and foil to protect the flavor of Miracle Aid. We discovered it with our personal favorite flavor, grape. If your taste buds call instead for raspberry, strawberry, lemon, orange, cherry or root beer, it's still a tip-top thirst-quencher on these hot summer days.

Did you ever wonder about the difference between weiners and frankfurters? It's size. Franks are usually about an inch thick and four inches long, weiners 3/4 inch thick and up to 5 1/2 inches long.

Did you know that nearly all the nation's Rock Cornish game hens are grown and packaged in Rockingham County, Virginia, the "Turkey Capital of the World"? And Shenandoah Valley Produce Co. reminds us that the tender little birds are easily grilled on a rotisserie over your outdoor charcoal brazier.

Fire Safety Tips

Every day, an average of 1,500 homes burn, 31 lives are lost. These losses are tragic. But, most tragic of all—they need not happen! 9 out of 10 could have been prevented. To reduce causes of fires, the Sentry Safety Council of the Sentry Insurance Companies has compiled this list of hazards to watch for:

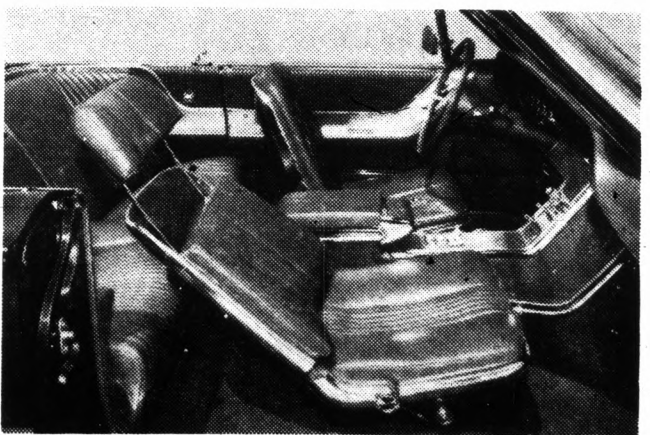

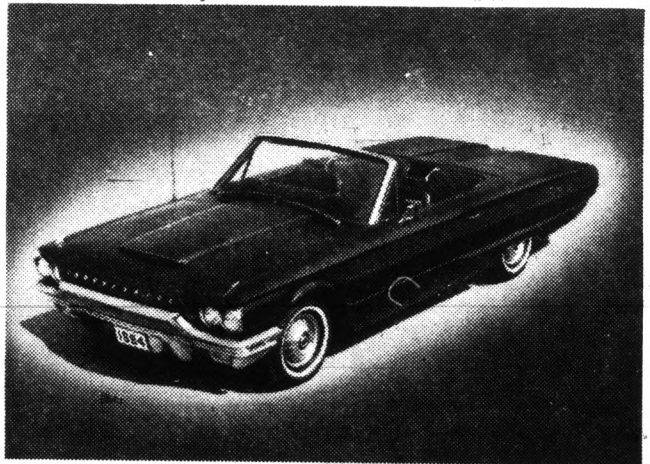

- When emptying ashtrays, make sure every cigarette butt is cold; before retiring or leaving house, check to make sure no one has left a cigarette burning; never smoke in bed.
- Have heating systems cleaned annually; close unused flues with non-combustible caps.
- Never load wall plugs with more than two appliances.
- Use U.L. approved fuses—most household circuits should not have over 15 ampere fuses.
- Never leave electric iron with current on; cool before storing.
- Never clean with gasoline or flammable fluids warns the Sentry Safety Council.
- Automatic gas water heaters should be checked annually; turn off non-automatic models before leaving house.
- Never string electrical cords under rugs, over radiators, through door jams.
- Caution baby sitter against permitting child to play with matches, electrical appliances; provide sitter with flashlight for use if lighting fails.
- Keep attic and basement clean.
- Never start an outdoor fire on a windy day; burn rubbish in a covered wire-mesh basket; extinguish fire thoroughly with water or cover with sand.
- Finally, plan what you and every member of your family would do in case of a fire emergency. The Sentry Safety Council says rehearse a family escape plan now—in advance.

"Some people think that anyone who can make enough money to go to college doesn't need an education."

"I sincerely hope the mental health program is extended into Washington where it is so sorely needed." —George B. Bowra, Aztec (N.M.) Independent-Review.

Eye-catching new styling is combined in the 1964 Thunderbird with unique luxury features including thin-shell bucket seats and the auto industry's first retractable seat belts. A longer hood, integrated bumper and grille and rectangular taillights enhance its traditional look of elegance (top photo). New features of its cockpit motif interior styling (bottom photo) include separate instrument pods, a distinctive new command console, and coved rear seats. An optional reclining seat for the front passenger includes an extendible head rest for complete relaxation on long trips. A new Silent-Flo ventilation system includes a vent at the bottom of the rear window on Landau and Hardtop models. The new Thunderbirds will be introduced in Ford dealer showrooms September 27.

PORTUGAL SUMMARY

Foreign news analyst Phil Newsom of United Press International reports today from Lisbon, Portugal.

A high government official sighed with regret as he spoke to his interviewer. The scene is Portugal's marbled parliament building, once an 18th century convent.

"Differences between governments are always unfortunate," he said. "But when they come between friends they are especially painful."

Foreign news analyst Phil Newsom has found there is both regret and deep resentment in Portugal over what the Portuguese regard as U.S. abandonment of a friend and ally in NATO. Also a misunderstanding of Portugal's determination to retain its overseas territories in Africa.

Traditionally aloof from European commitments, Portugal joined NATO in 1949 and announced it did so only because of U.S. free use of an airfield on Santa Maria Island in the Azores.

Also in 1951, because of her economic recovery, Portugal refused further U.S. Marshall plan aid and has gone on her grip ever since.

It came as a shock then in 1962 when the United States joined the AFRO-ASIAN countries in demanding that Portugal give up her grip on Angola, her largest and most prosperous province in Africa, and permit self-determination.

Portuguese officials freely admit that Portugal's current refusal to sign a new agreement on the Azores base springs from U.S. and Portuguese differences over Africa.

Portuguese-U.S. relations plunged to a new low in August when premier Antonio De Salazar accused both the United States and Russia of pressing African liberation for their individual advantage in control of African Markets.

In the United Nations, Salazar charged, self-determination had become synonymous with independence regardless of a people's ability to rule themselves.

In Lisbon there is a conviction that if independence were to come now to Angola, it would fly into tribal pieces with the whole rich area up for grabs.

The winds of change blow slowly over Portugal and change also has been slow to its provinces in Africa.

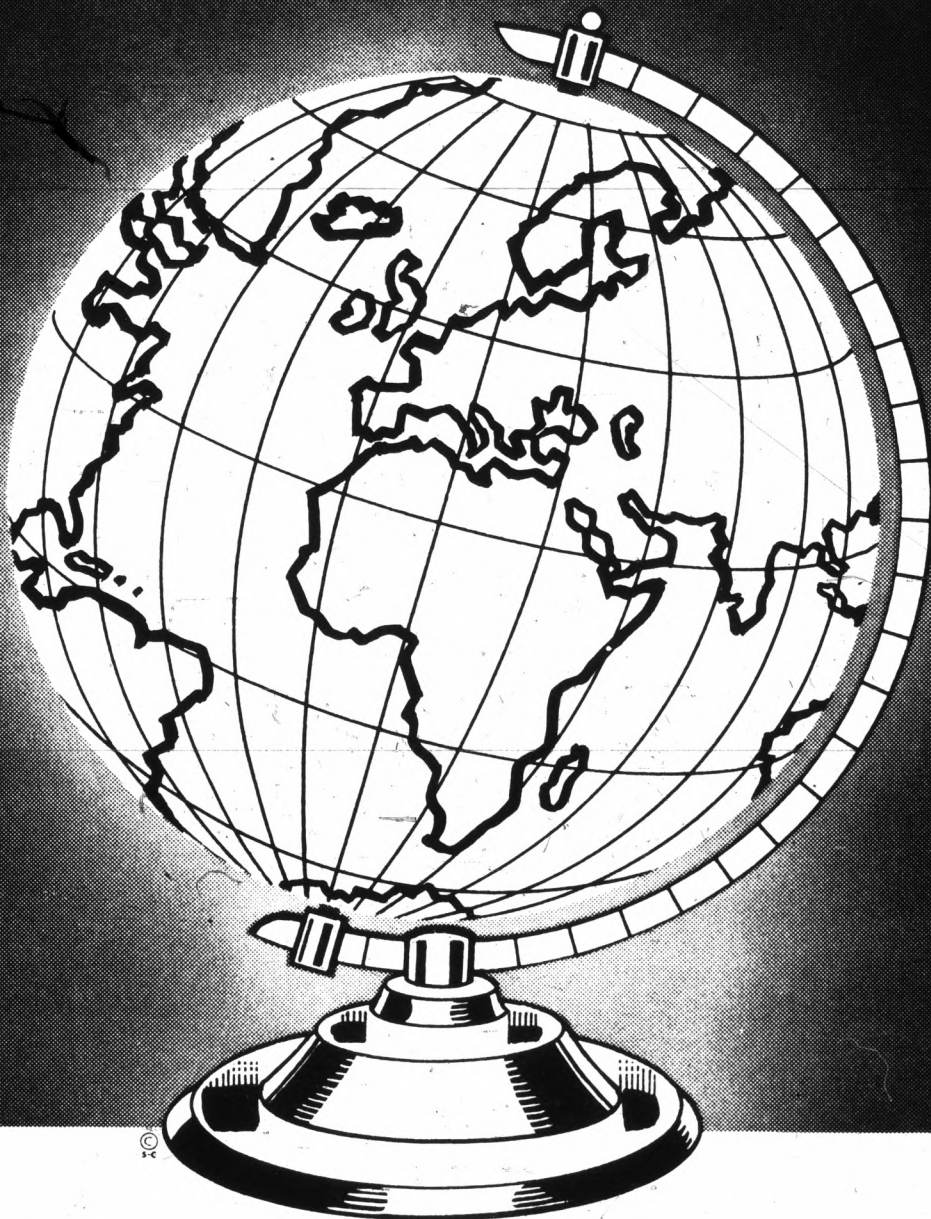

It is a source of pride to Portugal that on the bloody "night of the long knives" on March 5th, 1961, black African troops turned back the first wave of terrorism that saw the butchering of Europeans in settlements of Northern Angola near the border with the Congo.

For the sake of the Portuguese position it is unfortunate that important reforms giving the Africans equality with European workers and a greater voice in their own affairs have come only after the "Night of the long Knives."

But the Portuguese not only are determined, they are confident.

There are hints that forthcoming months may see a referendum to prove that Africans in the overseas territories prefer to remain Portuguese. Meanwhile, both for the AFRO-ASIANS and the United States, it is hands off Portuguese Africa.

Most of the world lives in darkness

104 OCT '63 Form 24

More than half the countries of the world live under a partial or complete black-out of news, through censorship. The people of these countries have lost a guiding light to freedom — the complete, true knowledge of all that is happening in the world.

To keep up with this demand for news, the newspaper industry has been continually working to improve their service — by introducing the most up-to-date communications and production methods.

So, while most of the world lives in darkness, our newspapers serve as a light of freedom, making a big difference in people's lives.

PAT BUTTRAM

Pat Buttram, with a breezy blending of philosophy and laughs, is now being heard three times a week on Monday Wednesday and Friday. The program is a new feature, five minutes in length, and will run exclusively on KQCY in this area.

Pat Buttram, veteran performer on radio, films and television, began his career as an early-morning disc jockey on an Alabama radio station. He later graduated to an evening show, but it was not until he was signed to "National Barn Dance" that he was on his way. For eight years, he was Gene Autry's comedy sidekick in radio, films and television. Numerous television appearances on the Tonight Show, the Ed Sullivan Show, the Arthur Godfrey Show, The Real McCoys and many others have contributed to columnist Hedda Hopper's designation of Buttram as "my favorite humorist."

VETERANS

Parents of deceased veterans are now being asked to fill out and return a special questionnaire to the veterans administrations, Glenn Corbitt, Manager of VA's Northern California Regional Office announced today.

Questionnaires were mailed to nearly 5,200 dependent parents of whose sons or daughters died in military service.

The questionnaire is a part of government accounting procedure, Corbitt explained. The VA must be sure that each parent reports income and value of property as required by law.

This important questionnaire must be returned before November 1963 so that eligibility for VA benefits may be determined.

Are you baffled by car customizers' lingo? Monogram Models, Inc. asked Darryl Starbird, the company's custom car design consultant, to write a dictionary of customizing terms. "From cArbs to customiZing" is free at your hobby dealer's when you buy a Monogram half-inch-scale customizing car kit. It defines everything from "A-bone" to "Z'd frame."

Don't hide mementos of your summer vacation away in boxes of albums. Trace the route of your auto trip on a map and glue it over a lamp shade, waste basket or table top. Photos, postcards, menus, even matchbook covers can be added. Cover the whole with clear shellac.

An amateur photographer uses Monogram's F-51D Mustang fighter to get breathtakingly real effects. He attaches a plane wing to his camera, then shoots two other models. The result: you're in the cockpit, looking across the wing at the two other aircraft in your three-plane formation. For greater realism, smoke up fuselage with tiny birthday candles to make the planes look "used." Or try Testor's clear dull coat spray lacquer to take off the shine.

CLEAR AS GIN

Artificial bait manufacturers and anglers go to great lengths to ensure that fish can spot their choice offerings even in the most turbid water, but sometimes the fish can see too much for the fisherman's own good.

Ultra-clear waters pose a problem for the angler, say the Mercury outboard authorities, since the victim may be able to look over the whole diabolical set-up—bait, hook, leader. That's a little too "sportin'".

Under such conditions, the only answer is to switch to light tackle that escapes detection, and use strategy that conforms to feeding habits. Light spinning gear is ideal, but the use of longer lightweight leaders can make all types of regular tackle suitable for the task.

Select tiny spinners or midget trolling spoons. Pick the runts out of the minnow bucket and use them first.

Generally, you'll do best during the early morning hours and again at dusk. Later in the evening, change to night fishing tactics. But always fish slow. This applies whether you're casting right next to the bank or bottom-bumping in the depths, advise the Mercury experts.

Clear water fishing is demanding, but it provides a new kind of challenge and can produce excellent results. If you can fool 'em, you can catch 'em.

FALL COLORS ATTRACT VISITORS TO WISCONSIN DELLS

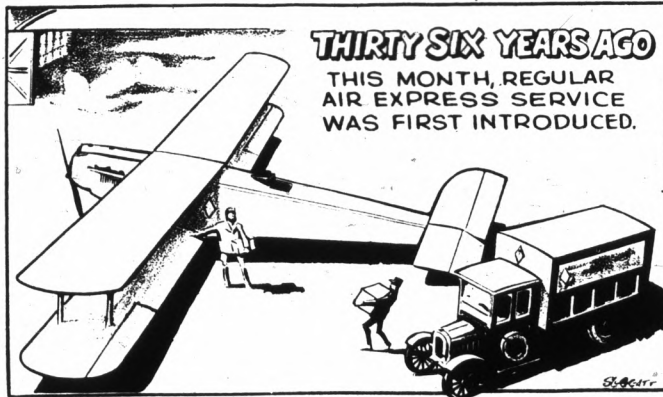

Autumn colors, warm days and cool nights plus the area's unspoiled beauty bring thousands of fall visitors to Wisconsin Dells—Lake Delton. Modern sightseeing launches provide unobstructed views of autumn-tinted forests and amazing cliff and rock formations. Winter also attracts its share of visitors who enjoy the fun of winter sports.

AGRICULTURE

News in Agriculture... by Bernard Brenner, United Press International Farm Editor in Washington.

Senator Humphrey of Minnesota says he's personally going to lead a move to persuade the government to reverse its policy on exporting farm products to soviet Russia.

Humphrey is the assistant Democratic leader in the senate. He discussed the issue with President Kennedy. The President, according to senator Humphrey, was interested, attentive, and not negative.

Humphrey's campaign was touched off by the announcement that Canada will sell more than 200million bushels of wheat to Soviet Russia.

On the Senate floor, Humphrey announced that the United States Government should now re-examine its own trade policy...study the possibility of expanding trade in food products in what he called "The Soviet Sphere."

The soviet wheat purchase from Canada comes along with reports that the Soviet Union's own wheat harvest is down sharply this year. Agriculture department officials say there have been no request from the soviets to buy American wheat.

If such a request should be made in the future, government and congressional spokesmen say the president would have power to agree.

He could legally tell the commerce department to issue an export license.

Back in 1961, congress adopted the so-called Latta amendment, aimed at discouraging exports of subsidized farm products to communist countries. The amendment, sponsored by republican congressman Latta of Ohio, was a declaration of congressional policy on the subject.

The administration has taken the position that the Latta amendment is strictly a policy statement...not a flat ban on any possible wheat exports to Russia. Latta says he thinks that any wheat sales to Russia at present would violate the policy declaration...but he adds that the president apparently would have the legal right to approve such a step.

DAIRY

A house agriculture subcommittee this week exploring the controversial issue of new dairy legislation.

The arguments before the subcommittee in hearings are not new.

U-S-D-A spokesmen urged the lawmakers to approve a double-barreled new dairy bill. One section of the bill would authorize voluntary use of a two-price plan in federal milk marketing order milksheds. The second portion of the bill would provide governments payments to farmers for limiting or reducing production.

The same subcommittee will hear the American Farm Bureau Federation attack the dairy bill. Farm bureau officials, in testimony prepared for the hearing, say the plan would raise government spending without cutting surpluses...That it might lay the ground work for a future campaign to impose mandatory controls on dairymen.

In the senate, a vote on the double-barreled plan is expected in about two weeks. One backer of the plan says he thinks it will be adopted but he's not making any flat predictions.

Agriculture secretary Freeman predicts that exports of American farm products may set an all-time record during the current fiscal year.

Freeman made the forecast in a speech in Washington recently. The current record for farm exports is five billion, 100 million dollars is set in the year ending June 30th, 1962. For the current fiscal year...the year ending June 30th, 1964, Freeman says his experts predict that shipments could go to a record of five-and-a-half billion dollars.

FISCHER QUINTUPLETS

The attention of the whole world is focused on a gray, 10-room, two-story farm house two miles outside Aberdeen, South Dakota. The residents of that house—Americans all across the nation --- ---and people around the globe are watching the progress of the Fischer Quintuplets.

The Fischer house is full of life on the inside as well as the outside now. Photographers, newsmen, curious residents and, interested tourists are constant spectators.

Outside, three or four ducks and chickens wander around the yard, three bicycles rest against the house. There are swings and a tricycle, and a variety of vegetables in the back garden, almost all were planted by Mrs. Fischer during her pregnancy.

The Chamber of Commerce in Aberdeen has offered to build a new home for the 12 member Fischer family. Residents of the town of 27 thousand have been showering them with gifts, the State Senate is working on a bill to exempt the children from income tax till they are 21, and all five have been granted full scholarships to attend college.

Stop Film Fumbling —

New Movie Cameras Take 'Cartridges'

CHICAGO — Bell & Howell has established a complete line of cartridge-loading 8mm motion picture cameras with the introduction of three new models in the Autoload family.

Two of the new cameras, Models 315 and 305, represent the first new B&H design in four years. The third, Model 417, retains the appearance and features of the popular "400" series of B&H cameras.

(A fourth cartridge-loading camera, Model 418, was introduced earlier this year.)

Each camera in the Autoload series comes with a cartridge which the photographer can pre-load with 8mm roll film, combining the light-tightness of a magazine with the economy of roll film.

Use of cartridges greatly simplifies the loading operation and virtually eliminates the "middle-of-the-roll" light leaking that is common to 8mm roll film.

To shoot an entire 50-foot roll, the photographer merely slips the cartridge into the camera, which automatically stops running after 25 feet have been exposed, indicating that the end of the first side has been reached. The cartridge is then flipped over in less than 3 seconds to continue exposure on the second side.

Or if the photographer wishes to switch cartridges at the end of the first side (if he wants to change from one kind of film to another, for example), he can merely drop the cartridge containing the half-exposed roll in his pocket or gadget bag. An exclusive indicator window in the rear wall of the cartridge shows that one side has already been exposed.
